Some Familiar Sayings.

Shakespeare gives us more pithy sayings than any other author. From him we call, "Count their chickens ere they are hatched." "Make assurance doubly sure." "Look before you leap." "Christmas comes but once a year." Washington Irving gives us the "Almighty dollar." Thomas Norton queried long ago, "What will Mrs. Grundy say?" while Goldsmith answers: "Ask no questions and I'll tell you no fibs." Thomas Tusser, a writer of the sixteenth century, gives us: "It's an ill wind that turns no good." "Better late than never." "Look ere thou leap." "The stone that is rolling will gather, or no moss." "All cry and no wool." "Is found in Butler's 'Hudibras.'" Dryden says, "None but the brave deserve the fair." "Men are but children of the larger growth." "Through thick and thin." "Of two evils I have chosen the least." "The end must justify the means." "Are from Matthew Prior. We are indebted to Colley Cibber for the agreeable intelligence that "Richard is himself again." Cowper tells us that "Variety is the spice of life." To Milton we owe the "Paradise of Fools." From Bacon comes "Knowledge is power," and Thomas Sotherton reminds us that "Pity is akin to love." Dean Swift thought that "Broad is the shadow of the sword." "Coming events cast their shadows before." "Distance that lends enchantment to the view." "A thing of beauty is a joy forever" is from Keats. Franklin says "God helps those who help themselves," and Lawrence Sterne comforts us with the thought that "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

A Great Hero.

The Hero of the hour in New Mexico is Patsy Garrett, who recently killed "Billy the Kid." He is a young man of twenty-seven, tall, slender, and agile, with brown eyes, golden hair, and a soft voice, and as he walks through the streets the very children stop to gaze at him with an admiring stare. Shortly after having arisen from the official reward which Garrett expected to receive for killing the notorious outlaw, the people of the Territory have set about raising a fund for him. Already the sum of $1,200 has been collected in Las Vegas.

Cleveland, Sept. 25.—The Committee of the Senate appointed at the last session of that body to report a new bankruptcy law intend to visit Chicago immediately upon the adjournment of the extra session, in order to confer with the business men of that city. It is the intention of the committee, as far as possible, to ascertain the views of those for whose benefit such a law is intended. Senator Ingalls, who is the chairman, has already secured much information and advice in reply to a circular which has been widely circulated by this committee; but it is considered desirable to confer personally with the leaders in trade throughout the country.

One of the favorite inscriptions in the funeral draping now going on, all across the continent, consists of these words: "God reigns, and the Government at Washington still lives." The deceased President was himself the author of this saying, using it on an occasion as much like the present as could well be. He never imagined then how it would reappear on the surface to-day. But besides reappearing, it is likely enough to become permanent now in our language, as the formula with which an old Administration is rung out, a new one rung in, and with the acknowledgment of a Divine Providence over all.—N. Y. Sun.

King Alfonso of Spain had a dreary childhood. Professors tried to drill every human science and some nine or ten languages into the child's head. There was always an excuse, as he dolefully observed, for making him learn something new. "That revolution of 1808," he said, "gave me my first holiday." He laughed, but it was a fact. His mother had a little more time to look after her son, and was wise enough to see that he had been ever-cramped. Thenceforth he was allowed to take things more easily.

The Mormons are obliged to pay to the church one-tenth of all they raise or make or earn. Some of them hire out to the Gentiles and learn something. A Mormon car-cleaner was called upon for his tithe, but refused to hand over. "The church will curse you," said the Mormon tax-gatherer. "Curse! You just drop around here early some morning and hear the boss car-cleaner talk to me, and if you think cursing has any effect on me maybe I'll pay my tithe."

Gen. Gordon, of Georgia, who left the United States senate two years ago because he could not support his family on the senatorial pay, has since been so fortunate as to have acquired a fortune through the sale of coal lands in Alabama, for which he and his two brothers and Gov. Colquitt received $700,000, together with $1,000,000 stock of the Richmond & Danville extension company.

History has its satires as sharp as the most biting darts of the schools. While the direct descendants of the Bonapartes are scattered over Europe in exile, or living in France on sufferance, or marrying the daughters of gamblers at Monaco, the line of the divorced Empress Josephine is ruling in various courts, marrying and mating with the oldest principalities on the continent.

If President Arthur does not know how to run his administration all he has to do is to send a postal card to some of the many editors who are brim full of information upon this subject. The amount of state-ship lying around loose in the editorial sanctuaries of the country is positively amazing.—K. C. Star.

King Charles, of Wurtemberg, is reported to have secretly embraced Catholicism, during his stay at Nice this summer, through the influence of Baron Spitzenberg, an ardent Catholic.

Mrs. Shaw, the daughter of Professor Agassiz and wife of the Boston millionaire, has established over thirty free kindergarten schools in Boston and the neighboring suburbs. She has been herself so energetically in the work of founding the schools and collecting in them the poor little waifs of the city that her health has given way and she is suffering from a nervous prostration brought on by her exertions.

The great battle between Abder Rahman and Ayoub Khan on the 23d inst., had lasted for about three hours, when two regiments in Ayoub Khan's army commenced to fight on their own account, being hereditary enemies. This settled the fight for Ayoub, and he fled with a loss of 200 killed and wounded. Two of his Herati regiments deserted to the Amer.

Mr. Fawcett, the Postmaster-General of Great Britain, was made totally blind by a young man by the bursting of a gun. But in spite of that he is one of the best informed men of the day, a profound mathematician, and widely read in literature and history.

A wealthy Italian who died recently in France has bequeathed to the town of Eisleben the sum of $10,000, as a mark of veneration for Martin Luther.

The fund for Mrs. Garfield now amounts to $213,000. About $14,000 of this was contributed by Chicagoans.

In the two operations for cancer recently performed, Senator Ben Hill has lost about one-half of his tongue.

F. J. Webber, the auctioneer, will sell at public auction, to-day, in the afternoon, on the plaza, one mule team, wagon and harness, household furniture and goods of all kinds. Goods are on exhibition.
